

I've just had a really great day

It was Friday morning, I heard the post come. There was a letter for me. I was so surprised; I never normally get letters. I opened it carefully.

Yay, I'd won first prize in a drawing competition. The first thing I did was pass it to my mom. She slowly read the first line, her face lit up. (I thought she was more excited than me!)

"Well done Katie," Mom said as she passed the letter back to me. "What have you won? What time does it start?"

I quickly read further down the letter. It says that I'm invited to meet JLS and Cheryl Cole at Beacon radio at five o'clock today, and that I can bring a friend.

At half past eight I ran all the way to school I was so looking forward to telling all my friends about it. Just as I was heading for the gate I saw Amy and Chelsea walking down the road, I ran towards them.

"Hi what's the rush," they said together.

I told them all about meeting JLS and Cheryl Cole at Beacon radio and being able to take a friend.

"So who you gonna invite then?" Chelsea asked.

I didn't know what to say because I didn't want to hurt either of their feelings, so I just said I didn't know.

Suddenly the bell rang for start of school.

"Come on or we'll be late for registration" said Amy running to the gates.

We had History first but I couldn't concentrate; I just didn't know whether to take Chelsea or Amy. The bell rang for break time everyone ran outside except me.

"What's up I thought you'd be excited about tonight," Mrs Smith said when she saw me walking slowly down the corridor. I told her all about the letter and that I couldn't decide who to take with me. "Whoever you choose is up to you, you'll make the right choice," she told me.

But it didn't make things any easier. I still had to choose between them. A few minutes later the bell went for the next lesson which was P.E. we were going to play rounder's. As we were waiting for our turn to hit the ball. Chelsea and Amy said "So who you going to invite then?"

I just said that I didn't know.

"Well you'll have to make up your mind sooner or later," Chelsea told me.

At last the bell rang for dinner time the day was going so slow I didn't want to talk to anyone. People kept asking me what was wrong and why I wasn't excited, I just didn't say anything. At last the bell rang for last lesson we were doing a project. I started to forget about who I was going to take, until the end of school arrived. I ran out of the school gates mom was standing waiting for me.

"You don't look very excited, have you chose which two friends you're going to take because I need to let their parents know," said mom.

I looked at her. I was relieved I didn't have to pick between Chelsea and Amy. I started to run and shouted Wait! They turned around. I told them about being able to take two friends. I'd read the letter too fast.

"Great we'll go and tell our moms," they said. I told them what time to arrive at my house as we we're going to be picked up by a limousine at four o'clock.

When the car arrived it was huge. We ran to get in; we felt like superstars. As we got nearer the gates of the radio station we saw a massive crowd standing outside. We drove past them, as we got out of the car we were met by the DJ, who took us to a room where JLS and Cheryl Cole were waiting for us. They were really nice, and sang their new singles. Just before they left they signed their new albums and some Beacon radio t-shirts as a memory of meeting them. When it was time to leave the DJ took us back to the limousine that drove us back home.

'I've just had a really great day!'
